

EU PVSEC 2009 in Hamburg

The 24th European Photovoltaic Solar Energy Conference and Exhibition – a track record

HR PERSONAL CONSULTING attended the exhibition in September with an own stand. Although the crisis did not spare the solar industry the number of exhibitors even increased once again. The same accounted for the visitors and the conference as well.

Stand of HR PERSONAL CONSULTING

Placed in a hall together with many well-known players of the photovoltaic industry, we got the impression to see a first light at the end of the tunnel for the PV market. Rumours about optimistic announcements, a multitude of concluded contracts or at least the gaining of promising business contacts were spread and made everyone seem happy with their successful attendance at the exhibition. So were we, as we appreciated lots of interesting dialogues with potential international business partners and highly qualified candidates at our stand.

Despite of the partly miserable situation of some companies, others are still respectively again looking for executives and experts. Nevertheless, a change in the direction of search can be stated; not so much concerning the places of work which are still mainly in the known markets of PV but considering the functions of the vacancies. So at the moment first and foremost experienced sales managers are in great demand, followed by project managers at several stages.

As personnel consultancy specialised on this industry we are not only happy about this foreseeable positive trend to more hiring again but we can also support companies with their search for managers and experts. Altogether, this exhibition was a further success for HR PERSONAL CONSULTING.

We look forward to meeting you at the next trade fair!
